

Before You Drill

> Well Location <

Deciding a location for your drilled well is very important. A drilled well should be located on the property that is easily accessible for future service. If you live in an area that has frost running deep in the winter months you'll want to consider the path of the underground water-line from the well to the house.

The sketch below gives one of many examples one may consider when deciding well location on the property.

In this example sketch the well location has these advantages:

- Easy accessibility ●
- Free from direct path of the snow plow ●
- Water-Line does not cross under a driveway ( frost risk ) ●
- Minimal yard to cross over with the service truck ●
